Extension: What is the difference between a simile and a metaphor?	.

Today I was learning independently

Jim Jarvis

Cinderella-like ✓

~~passing~~ Carriages flung muddy snow up to his light face and Crystal, cyan-blue eyes, and the Swaying ~~toes~~ horses slithered and skidded as they were whipped by their drivers. His resplendent tawny-brown hair captivated in the shining bright sun. Jim Jarvis, who is a juvenile ten-year-old boy, is like a dog who never stops panting! His personality was quite a bubbly, playful one; his life is very melancholy and depressing. So that's why he roams around the Victorian-style streets, lonely looking for food for his unwealthy, hapless family. Hungry and embarrassed; not know what more he can or can't do. he sits there, his hands on his face, as if ~~to~~ he was going to burst into tears. Is he? Was he? ✓

If you use a simile you use the words as or like, but in a metaphor you don't use as or like
